

I think this is a good thing for amatuer radio. We don't have to prove we can put up a antenna or that we know how to use our equipment to pass our tests. It is no longer a required by international law. Why keep the code test?